Learning to Give Yourself Time

As the month of February begins, many of us think about loved ones, significant others, boyfriends and girlfriends. This month is special to so many because we enjoy giving to those who mean so very much to us. It should be equally important to us because we should learn to give ourselves the opportunity to grow and succeed. Why not use this month, and those months ahead, by giving yourself more time to study, prepare for tests, and prepare for classes in general. Instead of using most of your time on the phone or computer, chatting with friends until bedtime, why not give yourself a little extra time to review for a quiz. Traditionally we say, "Valentine's Day is a day for love." Of course this is true, but it's also true that because you love yourself, you will spend the valuable time you have remaining in this final semester of this school year learning, engaging, and succeeding in the classroom. Let's do our part by taking advantage of every resource provided to ensure academic success.

STUDY TIP OF THE MONTH NOTE-TAKING

There is a strategy to note taking that all students should learn. Using index cards, marking key points, and rewriting to retain information are all efficient strategies that make note taking a reliable tool.
